Important Note for Defined Contribution QDRO's: All of the above approaches would provide the Alternate Payee with interest and investment gains/losses attributable to his/her share of the benefits for periods subsequent to the valuation date until the date of distribution. Additionally, the alternate payee's share would be calculated on a "pro-rata" basis among all of the participant's accounts and/or investments. If this is not your intent, please check the box below.

Exclude investment gains/losses attributable to the alternate payee share of benefits subsequent to the date of valuation until the date of distribution.

Loans (Choose one)

The Alternate Payee's share of the benefits will be calculated based upon the participant's total account balance including any outstanding loans on the participant's account.

The Alternate Payee's share of the benefits will be calculated based upon the participant's total account balance excluding any outstanding loans on the participant's account.
